

LANDON WARNER

Landon Warner is a high school senior who lives in Savannah, Georgia. He was born in Louisville, Kentucky but has lived in Savannah most of his life. He has had a love for art and imagination since he was a young boy. He has grown in experience and knowledge of different art forms through his education. He loves exploring and trying new ways to express his ideas through art. Ever since middle school he has had a vested interest in classical architecture and loved identifying classical elements on Savannah's historic buildings. He has drawn and photographed many of these buildings and specific Savannah scenes. He enjoys creating realistic art that captures the precision of our world as well as imaginative pieces that pull the viewer into a different world. Landon aspires to become an architect and artist who uses classical elements and his own style to communicate to the world.
