Michael Ezzell is a painter and printmaker living and working in Providence, RI. Originally from the Midwest, he received his Illustration degree from the Savannah College of Art & Design in Savannah, GA. Ezzell's work explores identity and self-expression, using symbolism and mythology as a guiding language to convey the inner workings of thought and soul. In the last few years, his work scaled up when he began executing outdoor murals, allowing him to share his work with a broader audience. He has worked with businesses like The Avenue Concept, Blick Art Materials, and Frog & Toad, where he is currently employed. There, he works in the studio creating original designs for screen printed apparel and accessories, while also seasonally brightening up the store's window display with rotating murals. Exhibiting his work in both group shows and solo shows around the country, he recently received his first museum exhibition at his alma mater, the SCAD Museum of Art.
